

Erika

Charmingly energetic, Erika is a cancer survivor and entrepreneur with a big heart, big dreams and big debt. Five hours after her last chemotherapy treatment three years ago her father passed away from cancer himself. Their combined struggle wiped out her savings, and she now supports both herself and her mother by working as a front desk concierge in downtown New Orleans. They live separately and splitting her time leaves no room for a personal life. Erika gives makeovers to other cancer patients and plans to create a non-profit to help amputees and patients get free glow-ups to raise their spirits in the toughest times. Will her Opportunity Coach, Patrice Washington, help her beat the odds when opportunity knocks?
